A warm welcome from Rushlight Events

Welcome to this 12th Rushlight Show, which has gone fully virtual for the first time and runs over two days. This is the leading event that brings together clean technology companies, customers of clean technologies, investors and financiers, government and other public sector representatives, advisers, intermediaries, charities and other interested parties in order to assist in the development and successful deployment of new sustainable energy, resource and environmental solutions.

Our flagship Cleantech Conference, involving over 110 presentations, is available throughout the event on demand. The Livestream is being opened by the Minister of State for Business, Energy & Clean Growth, Anne-Marie Trevelyan, and involves sessions on energy, natural capital and the circular economy on Wednesday. On Thursday, the Livestream runs the Sustainable Solutions Market Panel throughout the morning.

The Investor Lounge is a private hub for investors and companies presenting in turn to them and will only be visible to those involved.

The Exhibition has over 130 stands involving over 150 organisations.

There are 75 companies at the Show who are raising new equity this year. Over 50 companies have products that are market-ready for customers.

The Exhibition and Networking area will be open during the mid-morning break and throughout the afternoon from 13.00. This is the time to look to video chat to as many useful new contacts as you can with brief sessions, perhaps arranging to cover things in more depth at a future longer meeting.

This event provides a singular opportunity for cleantech companies to meet and be guided by investors; for advisers to support cleantech developers and for sustainability specialists in corporates and other organisations to find the latest clean technologies and to gain from the experience of others in their pursuit of a sustainable future for their operations and communities.

I would like to thank our sponsors and partners of the Show for their support and active participation which contribute so much to the event.

I wish you a very successful and enjoyable two days.

Clive Hall
